Crosses

By: Christine Dayton
Throughout Peru, many crosses and showings of faith could be found. This included crosses and the like on Churches, homes, and on the sides/tops of mountains.
At the first official site we visited in Peru, Saqsaywaman, there was a cross close to the top of the mountain.

Above: Standing at the base of the cross, facing away.
To the east of the cross was a statue of Jesus overlooking the city of Cusco.

The above picture is of the statue at night from my hotel room.
We did a lot of driving in Peru. Along the way, we saw a number of crosses on the hills.
We also saw quite a few on buildings or along the road.
There were many crosses in Arequipa at the Santa Catalina Convent.

Three crosses in the courtyard.

There were crosses over the beds the nuns used to sleep on.

Cross over a doorway.
At Colca Canyon, there was one overlooking the river.

If you use your imagination, these (relatively small) cacti found on the quarry hike in Ollantaytambo look like crosses.